BIG BARN DOOR SKETCHES

Purely Personal and Mostly About Myself and Early Career.

I went to work for Mr. Vaughan, but not until after he had consulted with Mr. Haynes and found I was to leave his employ. In this I made a mistake. I should have remained in the Times office and finished my trade. But I didn't. The Democrat office was under no obligation to learn me anything as they paid me for what I could do and I recall how wealthy I felt when six dollars was paid me for my first week's work. Was really afraid of being robbed and carefully locked the door to my room that night.

In settling with Mr. Haynes there was a misunderstanding between father and him as to two months' schooling, whether it was to be reckoned out or in. I was to make it up. That is, work two months longer. Father said the trade was ten months' work and two months' schooling and $40.00. It was settled in court, father winning.

I had nothing to do or say in the case. I was in Norway at the time of the trial. This learnt me something I have always followed: when a trade running any length of time is made, write out the agreed conditions and have both parties sign it. I have made many such in the past without material misunderstanding. It is the only safe way. Do it and avoid possible trouble.

C. G. Thomas was foreman in the Democrat office and O. W. Tibbets set type part of the time and did copying at the Registry of Deeds for Jacob P. Boody, the registrar. Later he became clerk at the Grand Hotel and after the Laclede National Bank and after the death of D. J. Dinsmore was made cashier, which position he held during life.

Mr. Thomas, the foreman, had stuck a finger into a can on a County Campbell Press down Portsmouth way and had lost it. This is about all I remember of him. Where he is I don't know. He had some babies and lived over the printing office and his wife was continually calling for water and wood.

Frank W. Truland of Lancaster, N. H. came there as foreman in October that year. He wore a Scotch cap and dressed like a North County rube, but he was a good printer. His brother, Louie J., soon came and he too was a printer. Then came the mother and a whole flock, three of them I think. The Trulands have been their home since. The hosiery label job printing shop in Casino Square and have made and saved money. An Otis Tufts hand press was used and on publication day nearly all of the Vaughan family took a hand. There was Esquire Vaughan, Charles, Grace and "Brownie."

Mr. Vaughan was a well yer, clerk of courts, trial justice as an editor and a member of "Cricket" Smith's Domino Club. He was a busy man and died at 56 I'm thinking. In 1872 "the Liberals" captured the democratic party and nominated for president, Horace Greeley, editor of the New York Tribune, whose qualifications for the office consisted largely in his said white hair and the ugly things he said about the democratic party in his paper. B. Grant and Colfax were the Republican candidates. The office in which I was working was democratic. Band music, red fire and torch light processions were of frequent occurrence. I carried a torch and marched in a democratic procession, which displeased my father to such an extent he took me from it much against my inclinations. This ended my apprentice days.

Father sent me to Norway, Me. to live with Uncle E. H. Brown and attend the Norway Liberal Institute under the teaching of Prof. O. M. Metcalf, who afterwards became a lawyer. This was in February 1873. I attended the spring term of school and built the fires and swept floors of the school-building, receiving pay for so doing.

Saturday I worked in E. H. Brown's wood turning shop at Steep Falls or in the printing office of Simon Drake, who then published the Norway Advertiser. Dr. F. E. Drake, dentist, then worked there as did "Bats-Eye" Hayden, clerk. He died some years ago.

leaving a widow, Alma Pendexter Hayden, who is well known to our readers as a poet of brilliancy. She is matron of a public institution in Rochester, N. Y., and a sister of Hugh Pendexter, the author. He had one son, Arthur Hayden, who divides his time in living in Norway and Massachusetts.

I recall washing "the forms" with "Bats-Eyes" and the squabbles and fights we had in which both would be daubed in printer's ink. It was easier to carry "the forms" down to the well then to bring the water up stairs and around the well in the Ben Hawkins' yard was the battle ground.

Curt Stiles, after college, but on his vacations he wrote items and editorials. I heard him preach his first sermon in the Universalist church. Later he accepted the Congregationalist dogma and became a noted preacher in that faith until failing health compelled him to give it up. He then devoted his time to editing a religious review, preaching and literary work in New York City. He was for several years employed on the Standard Dictionary, published by the Funk & Wagnalls Co. of New York. He died a few years ago in Brooklyn, N. Y., leaving two sons who are engaged in newspaper work.

Curt Stiles knew what it was to work with both hands and brain and carved out an enviable life record in his field. Charles R. Tenney, as a boy was with the office some and assisted in news gathering. He became a prominent Universalist preacher and is now in Massachusetts. He is a brother of Mrs. F. A. Danforth.

The "Cobblers" had a club room over the printing office in the top of Benson Hawkins' building, corner of Main and Danforth streets. It was never locked and I'd sometimes go in and look at the table on which was a pack of cards, boxing gloves, chairs, scraps of leather and a dirty floor. It smelt strongly of tobacco smoke. Dan Harmon, Jas. Danforth, S. H. Walcott, T. H. Gladall, C. M. Smith and others belonged. All are now dead except the latter, yet the club is in a flourishing condition and own a building of their own near the shoe factory engine house.

Addie Matthews and Iza Howe were assistant teachers. I recited lessons to the latter along with John and Rose Horne and others. Lut Denison and Geo. W. Holmes studied Latin. George was a quiet, slow moving studious boy, some afflicted with constitutional indolence. Charlie Crooker was different, he walked on his hands and fought and squabbled with everyone, including "Emmas," the colored student, who was brought here from the south with Sumner Burnham.

Julia Hall was a good scholar so were the Denisons, and there were others. I shared a seat with a fellow named Charles, who now lives in Lowell, Mass. John S. Richardson came from Baldwinsville and boarded with his uncle, Albert Sanborn, at Steep Falls, who was the president of the school committee for District No. 7. This included the three schools in the village and it was through him Richardson and I got the job to saw and put in the sheds the wood to be used in the schoolhouses. "This we did. I forget how many cords, but it was something of a job and we got the going price for our work. There were no gasoline propelled saws in those days. Bone, muscle, saw and an axe was all the tools needed.

John Richardson and I spoke our pieces in Concert Hall and the school closed. I went to work for Sim Drake on the Norway Advertiser. I forget what he paid me, but boarded with him and he lived over the Norway Savings Bank. Dr. W. A. Drake, now of North Weymouth, Mass., was then in college. Fred E. Drake, Ernest and "Flotie"—Florence I presume was her name. She married Dr. Chas. E. Johnston. Ernest has since died and the Fred Drake is the present popular and prosperous Norway dentist. Somehow Fred didn't take kindly to the art of printing and seemed glad to have his father employ him as he had less work and more leisure time."

I worked in the office until about July 1st, when one evening while hoeing in his garden, which was very near where Dr. Barker's garage now is, Dr. Drake told me Fred, (his son) was going to do more work in the office and the rush of job printing being over, he was going to get on without me and save expense. He was sorry to let me go, but poverty compelled him to do so.

It grieved me as I didn't want to leave town preferring to stay than to return to Meredith Center. I thought of visiting the Oxford Democrat office on Paris Hill to see if I could not get work but after a talk with Benson Hawkins, my sabbler friend and counselor, I concluded not to do it, but look for a job at having.

Mr. Hawkins told me Joe Churchill, who lived on Crockett Ridge, had been in his store that day wanting to get a light hand to help him hay. Here was a chance for me. I asked Mr. Hawkins if it would do to call on Mr. Churchill and see about the job on Sunday and he told me it would be all right. I visited him that very day.

Mr. Churchill lived on what is now known as the Elhanan Tubbs place. I found him laid down on the floor in the spare room away from the pestering flies. He asked some questions and found out who I was and where I'd been working and who my relatives were and the like. He said he was afraid I wasn't as much of a boy as he wanted and asked how much pay I expected to get. I told him all I was worth and that he might decide. He wanted to know if I had having tools. I had none and told him so. He said I must have a rake, scythe and snath and rifle and asked me if I could get them and I told him I could and would be up to his place the next morning to do work if he said so. "All right, be up here tomorrow by nine o'clock and I'll give you your board for a few days and see what you can do."

I had no money with which to buy the tools as I had just bought a suit of clothes and hadn't fully paid for them. I went to Isaac Denison, where I had purchased the clothes and told him what I needed and asked him if he would trust me for the tools until I could earn the money to pay him and also to square up for the balance due on the clothes. I felt he would do it.

If he didn't I was sure the Brooks Brothers would as I had a little acquaintance with one of the latter firm, who had sold nursery stock at Laconia, N. H., the town I used to work in.

Mr. Denison did not hesitate, but said, "Certainly you can have all you need at this store, I'm not afraid to trust you or the Richardson boy—referring to the boy who had saved wood with me at the schoolhouses in the spring."

I got the implements and was at Joe Churchill's farm before the hour set ready for work. I could mow better than Walter Churchill, his son, though not as heavy or strong, but to swing a scythe and cut grass was easy to me for I had learned how to do it and to keep a scythe in order. I cut with both point and heel and did square work. This pleased Mr. Churchill, who was not a real farmer, but a tailor and worked mainly at his trade in the village for Messrs. Whitcomb and Oxnard.

On leaving to go to my uncle's, E. H. Brown's on Saturday night to spend Sunday Mr. Churchill handed me some money—presume he knew I was owing him having tools—I asked him if he hadn't paid me too much and he said no, I was worth a dollar and a quarter a day and he would board me during foul weather too. I was greatly pleased as I didn't expect but a dollar a day.

This money I turned over to Mr. Denison that night. The next time I came into the village I settled with him in full and had a small balance left in my pocket. Mr. Churchill was Perham, a sister of Gov. Perham and as nice and motherly a woman as ever lived. She would occasionally write me in years to come while I was attending school at New Hampton and her letters were always full of cheer, hope and good wishes.

Joseph Churchill's brother, William, lived on the place now owned by David F. Foster on Pleasant street. He was sick and the folks would go over and watch with him nights. He died in September.

We had about finished haying when father and mother came across country to visit relatives. Ephraim H. Brown was a brother of my mother, whose maiden name was Dorcas Adams Brown, and she was born in Norway in 1826 on a farm near where the late Samuel Foster lived. Have heard mother say she attended church at the Center and would go barefooted almost to the meeting house carrying her shoes and stockings in her hand and would put them on before going in. This saved wearing out shoes. There was a large family and all the boys were christened with Bible names as were most of the girls.

Ephraim Brown, my grandfather, moved into Norway from Carlisle, Mass. in 1823 and Ephraim Heald Brown, my uncle, has told me he remembered the journey, though less than five years old. They came by ox teams bringing all their belongings. The journey took several days.

Grandfather Brown lived on the farm about ten years and then bought the grist mill at Steep Falls when custom grinding was done and shoe pegs made hence his nickname, "Peggy" Brown. The mill and business were washed away in the freshet of 1843 and grandfather died the following year.

I told this so as to connect myself with a Norway family. Father had a new plan worked out for me. I was to return with them to Meredith Center and enter the New Hampton Literary and Biblical Institution on the opening of the fall term. He had money enough to pay my expenses there one term and if I wanted to go longer I must "work my way" as many other boys had done.

"Supt. Morrill has placed a Florence oil stove in the Crockett Ridge school in order that hot lunches may be served." News item in last week's Advertiser. Capital ideal Napkins and finger bowls should follow. Graphophones, chewing gum and wrist watches may come later. Let us so hope.

"Do not drive in one track. Avoid making ruts. Use wide tires," was once an overhead ornament stretched across the street near the Fair Grounds. It isn't there now, neither is the good road.

I'm surely coming back! Had a fight over the telephone with the Central Hotel girls the other day. F. W. Sanborn.

SOLDIERS GOT RELIEF FROM SORENESS

Boys on the Border Relieved Their Pains and Aches with Sloan's Liniment.

Once upon a time Norman Jones, serving in the National Guard at El Paso, returned to camp after a strenuous 15 mile hike foot-sore and weary. He had not been long in active service and his shoulders, back and limbs felt the after-effects of marching. Remembering Sloan's Liniment, Jones applied it to the sore spots and went to bed. He writes: "I arose the next morning feeling fine; in fact I had entirely forgotten about the hike and went out for a four-hour drill in the sun as spry as ever."

Private Jones passed the experience along, and many a boy on the border relieved the agony of sprains, strains, bruises, insect bites, cramped muscles, rheumatic twinges, etc., by the use of Sloan's Liniment.

Easily applied without rubbing. At all druggists, 25c, 50c, and $1.00.

HALLOWE'EN, WITH THINGS UNSEEN

O, Hallowe'en, O, Hallowe'en, come once again the things unseen.

So chanted a tall white witch at the door as she ushered in each bevy of guests. Hushed was the talk and laughter as the invited ones stepped over the threshold into the darkened hall, lighted only by one dim torch. At first they could see nothing, but the tall white witch. However, they were not afraid for they knew she was a good witch because she was dressed in white.

The nervous girl, nevertheless, gave a start when her hand was touched, but her eyes by this time were becoming used to the dark, and she made out a shadowy black form at her side. It spoke not, but moved stealthily up the stairs followed by the small group of boys and girls, who had been ushered into the house. Later they knew that each guest or group of guests was met and taken upstairs in this way.

At the door of a room upstairs the ghostly guide left the girls and they entered, but the boys followed the spectre to another room. In each room was a white spectre who told the young people that up in the attic they would be able, if duly dignified and serious, to shake hands with their future mates. Another figure silhouetted in white against the dark background pointed the way up the attic stairs.

Dismissal the steps creaked, and mournfully the wind howled. A few grinning Jack-o-lanterns furnished the light. Into the farthest darkest corner must those who wished to pry into their future. Suddenly something groaned, the groan rose into a shriek then died down into smothered sobs. This continued every couple minutes, and it took all the courage they possessed to penetrate the awful darkness of that corner. Some would have fled down the stair but for fear of the ridicule of companions, and the motionless white figure at the door.

Once near the corner the way was barred by two black cat-like curtains. It was necessary to put the hands between these. When it was thrust inside it seized a cold, wet, shiny hand the touch of which sent a cold chill to the very marrow of one's bones. Each turned and went downstairs, feeling still the touch of that awful thing, and hearing the moaning and groaning still continuing.

Before they left for their homes that night they learned that the groans and shrieks came from the open neck of a bottle thrust under a window and the cold shiny hand was only a glove stuffed with wet sawdust.

When all had visited the attic they descended to the first floor which was lighted by red shaded lights. Black cats and black witches with brooms were out from paper and pinned on the walls and curtains. Cupid was conspicuous with drawn bow, all ready to pierce some hearts with his sharp arrows.

By the fire place sat a red gypsy telling fortunes by reading the palm of the hand. In another corner one told by a poor beggar woman, who interpreted the tea grounds. These two fortune tellers were very popular between games, and especially by those whose hearts cupid had already pierced.

Games were played. Among them the old Boot and Shoe Family, magic mirror, magic numbers, and so on. Tiny Jack-o-lanterns were the place cards at the supper table. Each had been so cut as in some way to indicate that person's facial characteristics; such as, an extremely long nose, large mouth, receding chin, big eyes, etc. Sandwiches cut in animal shapes with cookie cutters, pickles and cold boiled ham followed the merriment attending the finding of their proper seats at table. (The ghosts and witches condescended to unmask.) Next came love apples, the insides of which were removed and the space filled with hard tomato soup. Halves of little pumpkins held the ice cream accompanied with heart cakes pierced with red icing arrows.

Each guest declared the party the best ever, because it was different from any he or she had ever attended.

We Must Add $175 to the HUDSON SUPER-SIX

Here is an issue which we can't evade. So we meet it fairly and frankly, but give you a full month's warning. Every Super-Six will be sold at present prices while they last. If you can get one, get it.

The Super-Six of the present series is built from materials contracted last year. There are only 3500 more to go out, including open cars and enclosed. And part of them are sold.

The next production—starting December 1—will be like the present models. The changes, if any, will be only minor refinements. But materials for that series were contracted this year, and at prices enormously advanced.

So the cars now in process are the only Super-Sixes we can deliver at the present Hudson prices. The advance will be $175 per car.

No Way Out

Most people know that Hudson profits are amazingly low for our output. Here is the top-place car—the largest-selling fine car in the world with a price above $1100. Yet it sells way below some fine cars. Still our standards are so high that, despite our big output, profits are very small.

Now these high-grade materials, in one year, have enormously advanced. We must either adopt lower grades of materials, or add the advance to our price.

There is no other way out for fine-car makers whose profits have been fair. This enforced raise means no greater profit to us. So we frankly state the facts.

We shall continue the present-grade Hudson. Next year's models will be the same as this year's; save perhaps in some minor refinements. There will positively be no change in the Super-Six motor. So the added cost—and that alone—will be added to our price.

Good News for Owners

This will be good news for owners. About 25,000 have, or will get, Super-Sixes at present prices. With this patented motor, where wear and friction are almost eliminated, depreciation is a trifle. And like cars, of the next production, will cost a great deal more. So a Super-Six can be bought now at a saving of $175.

We have under way of the present production about 3500 cars. Part are open models, part enclosed. Many of them are sold.

But many Hudson dealers, suspecting the advance, have unsold Super-Sixes. If you get one now, you will save $175. For all Hudson dealers will advance the Super-Six when we start production of the next series.

If you can get one now, go get it.

Next Year's Ruling Car

Next year, as this year, the Hudson Super-Six is certain to hold its supremacy. The Super-Six is controlled by our patents—the motor which added 80 per cent to efficiency. So other cars can't use it.

The Super-Six now holds all the worth-while records. All the world's stock car records up to 100 miles. It holds the 24-hour record of 1819 miles. It won the Pike's Peak hill-climb—the world's greatest event of its kind.

In September it won the ocean-to-ocean record. It went from San Francisco to New York in 14 hours, 59 minutes less time than the next best record.

It won all these records because of endurance. Because this invention has so nearly eliminated all friction, vibration and wear.

So every man who knows the facts must concede the Super-Six supremacy. Every test has proved it. If you want such a car—even for next year—now is the time to get it, if you can.

WHAT CATARRH IS

It has been said that every third person has catarrh in some form.

Science has shown that nasal catarrh often indicates a general weakness of the body; and local treatments in the form of snuffs and vapors do little, if any good.

To correct catarrh you should treat its cause by enriching your blood with the oil-fund in Scott's Emulsion which is a medicinal food and a building-tonic, free from alcohol or any harmful drugs. Try it.

The Free Delivery Requires a New House

Number

The free delivery is an assured fact. But it is a question of preliminaries before the fact can be realized and something substantial is accomplished. Each citizen can do his bit toward bringing the event to a climax and keeping this progressive measure in motion. First of all, search out the assessors and get your right home number. When that has been done the ice is broken and we are getting somewhere.

James N. Tutts has built a new platform in front of his store. Howard Laselle and family are keeping house this week for his mother, Mrs. Frank Briggs on Cottage street, during her absence with the hunting party in Riley Plantation.

Catherine Jones while driving her team on Maple street early Friday evening, got into a mixup with Victor Matter, who was driving his outfit in the opposite direction. The night was dark, the lights scattering and neither carried a horn to boot. This unfortunate combination led up to the accident, which resulted only in a sprung wheel and minor scratches on both wagons. The surprise was mutual.

Harmon C. Crocker and wife and family and Mr. and Mrs. Montford of Portland were at Round Pond last Sunday. They came in a King auto driven by Mr. Crocker, bought last spring.

Will Bennett and Cleveland Waterhouse are in Springfield, Mass. They are attending the National Dairy show and will visit Mr. Bennett's cousin, Will Mason and family while there.

Mrs. Josephine Morse, Prescott Morse, Mrs. Maud Howard, Sadie Dutton, Mrs. Fred Lee and daughter, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Bennett and family last week and attended the golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Grover.

Mrs. M. E. Cleveland is visiting Mrs. Mary Cleveland.

Grace Grover is with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Gould, assisting Mrs. Gould, who is not well.

Mr. and Mrs. Alphonso Charles of North Waterford spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Jason Marr.

Geo. Skilling and family of Bolster's Mills called on Mrs. Skilling's mother, Mrs. Flora Stearns, who cares for Capt. Bisbee at John Sampson's, Monday afternoon.

Morris Russell of Malden, Mass., was in town recently to see his sister, Mrs. G. H. Bennett. Gillman Milliken went to Bangor the first of the week on business. He will return later to his work on the new post office basement.

The night "cop," Sam H. Young, reports that during the past six months only two tramps have applied for food or lodgings. A cold weather approach, he expects a few more. They never make a second appeal. A swell feed of water and crackers, with a bed of one blanket on an iron frame, is not worth taking a chance on but once.

Mrs. Ada (Grover) Perigo of Old Orchard, formerly of Norway is in the Biddleford hospital ill with pneumonia. She conceived the idea of the Grover family reunion and had the details worked out, but was unable to attend because of her sudden illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Fredland Morrison and daughter, Rebecca of Rumford, have been guests of their uncle, Fredland Howe, Jr.

Mrs. Julia McLean had for the week-end her daughter, Mildred McLean and Stanley Bennett of Livermore Falls.

Mrs. Josie Morse and son, Prescott, of Lancaster, Mrs. Mary Bloomer of Cumberland Mills, who were in town to the Grover golden wedding anniversary, Saturday, returned to their homes Monday.

Percy Culbert and Elmore Culbert of Ontario, Canada, were in town Saturday. Percy has secured work at Hastings and Elmore has a job at Scribner's Mills.

A. L. (Daley) Sanborn, who has been at home for two weeks because of his father's illness, started on a trip to several Maine cities, Tuesday. "Daley" represents the New York Sporting Goods Co. and Tutts Bros. of Norway.

Olive Goodwin and wife, Mrs. Ellery Wheeler and Mrs. Frank Briggs are on a hunting trip this week in Riley Plantation. Camp Brockton is their headquarters.

Arthur Gammon, Mike King, John Cleveland and Napoleon Foster were at Lewiston, Saturday to the Bates football game.

Mildred Noyes was in Portland, Saturday.

R. S. Osgood spent Sunday with John C. Briggs at Gardiner.

Shirley McKay of Bates was at home over Sunday.

Mrs. A. D. Park of South Paris entertained the Barton Reading Club Thursday afternoon.

Thirty-two Years Ago This Week

W. Granville Martin, carpenter, contractor and builder, also author of the "Lovell Tricks," now living in Norway, is repairing buildings at North Waterford for H. P. Elliott, King of the Spool-makers and later the owner of the famous race horse "H. P."

Mrs. John D. Wilson started for Florida to join her husband, who has been there for several months.

William Rasmus, colored, educated at the Norway Liberal Institute, read law with Pearce & Burnham, writes from Philadelphia. Rasmus came up from the south with Sumner Burnham. * * * His whereabouts now unknown to us.

Henry Eldrich, foreman in the bottoming room past three years, goes to Rochester, N. H., to work for I. S. Withers. Geo. Lewis of Lynn, takes his place in the shop.

L. Webb Jackson of the Almo House near G. T. R. depot, South Paris, is making an addition to the house, adding some 20 more rooms to it. Geo. R. Hammond has charge.

Twenty-eight Years Ago This Week Royal Quimby, the new landlord of the New Beals Hotel, has arrived and he is putting the house in order.

October 23 Benjamin and Henry Hosmer were born. They were twins and the sons of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Hosmer are now known as "Ben and Hen."

Other Norway births: October 19, H. E. Mixer, a daughter and to Chas. H. Hayward, a daughter on the 31st.

Chas. E. Holt, Nathan W. Millett and John Wyman were selectmen. All have gone down to the willows and we know them only by memory and the records.

S. J. Court—Orrin E. Lamrock of Norway and Joseph Lamere of Bethel, were admitted to citizenship in other words naturalized.

Admitted to practice law:—J. Orrin Smith, Norway; Jesse W. Warren, Norway and Z. B. Rawson of Chesterville.

Upton:—Mrs. J. M. Abbott has gone to Norway to visit her son, G. G. Abbott.

S. T. Peaslee is suffering from liver complaint. * * * Mr. Peaslee is still living and caring for the roads in Upton and the wild lands of Coe, Pingree & Co.

Gran. Porter of South Paris is making 100 barrels of cider at his mill every 24 hours.

Where does this cider go? That's the question. Very few people will admit that they drink cider. None sell it.

where, oh where does it go? Into vinegar, boiled cider apple sauce and "the arts," of course. "The arts" like "split" is confined to prohibition States and has a positive place in their current nomenclature as did "W. T. Gouda" in the podanger days of coon skins, log cabins and hard cider. * * * The cider mill has become a tenement now. Brown-tail moths have ruined many of the cider orchards.

Everybody reads the Advertiser as it contains all the local news and has nothing to say politically. Invite that neighbor who calls round to borrow the Advertiser before you have had a chance to read it, to subscribe for the paper.

If he is too poor to pay for the paper ask him to wait until you have read it. * * * It's now "buy or borrow a copy."

In renewing a subscription a young lawyer writes as follows:—"Although I have found a better country than Maine still I have a great interest and regard for the people of old Oxford County and must have the Maine news. The wild and woolly West" is the correct place for a young man who is willing to "hustle."

* * * It came from S. S. Abbott, Esq., who read law with Judge A. E. Herrick of Bethel and located at Denver, Colorado and has since become a prominent lawyer and something of a politician of that city.

"I have been offered $1000 for that lot but I don't want to sell," said Dr. B. F. Bradbury. "I would rather lease it. I think it to be worth $112 per year. It has about 50 feet front and runs back to the river. It is one of the best locations in town. You are aware that the Norway just entering into another boom. Business can't help being good," said the doctor. The lot in question is the one between his residence and the Nevess' store, now occupied by Fletcher. We understand S. B. & Z. S. Prince wish to buy it.

N. W. Millett is circulating a subscription paper soliciting money to buy a lot for the Baptist Church which is to be built in Norway. The old Baptist Society have about $2000 and the State Association are to put an equal amount with it and a four thousand dollar church is to be built in the spring. * * * A lot was purchased and a church built on Cottage street.

Twenty-four Years Ago This Week Virgil Dunn has a lame ankle as the result of breaking a colt.

Augustus Noyes of Greenwood had his annual husking party last Tuesday evening. There were between forty and fifty friends and neighbors present and 253 bushels of ears of corn were husked.

It was a jolly party and after the supper the younger members had a dance. W. S. Pratt is going to put in a restaurant in addition to his business at once and in early spring will put in another oven and make his business more extensive.

T. S. Webb has bought E. E. Millett's store and will take possession about the 15th of January.

Dr. G. W. Hazelton will go to Errol, N. H., to practice medicine.

South Paris:—Jessie, the nine months old daughter of Frank White of South Paris, while her mother was from the room a few minutes crept to another room where a pail of water was standing, climbed up and fell in head first. Her mother on returning found her drowned.

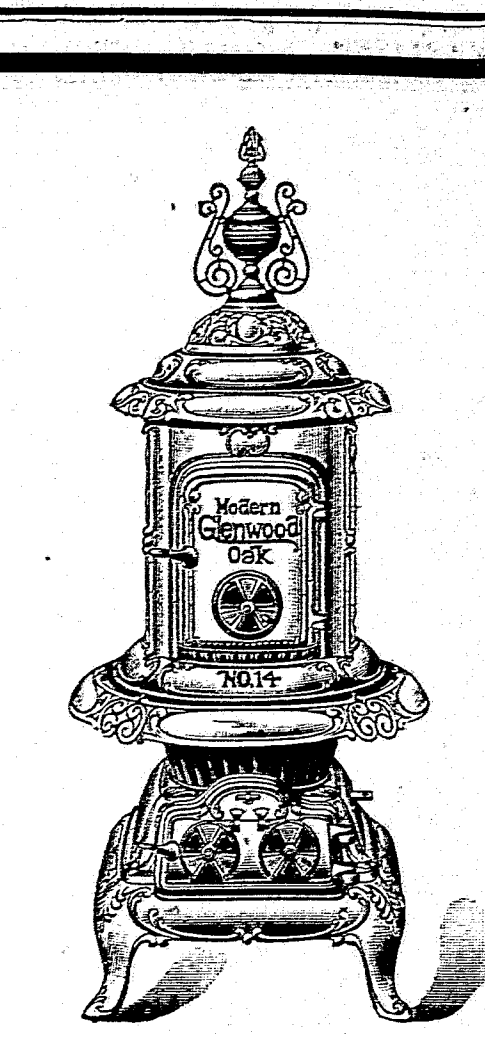

A. M. Gerry and Fred Bonney returned from a hunting trip recently with 28 fine woodcocks.

The Norway Grange celebrated the 15th anniversary of their organization in their halls last Monday. There was a speaking and literary entertainment in the Grange hall proper. Dinner was served in Ryerson Hall. There was an exhibition of fruit. C. W. Ryerson gave some interesting reminiscences of Norway Grange and its officers in the past 15 years. The grange started with 28 members and of those, ten have passed beyond.

Parent-Teachers Association Meet

The regular October meeting of the Parent-Teachers Association was held Friday evening at 8 o'clock in the Norway High building.

Superintendent T. C. Morrill called the meeting to order. The minutes of the previous session were read and approved. Florence M. Hale of Augusta was the speaker of the evening. She is one of the state representatives under the Rockefeller Educational Commission.

The object is to gather the parents and teachers on common ground, where the difficult problems may be discussed and a better knowledge of conditions given.

Mrs. Hale is enthusiastic over her work, therefore an interesting and instructive speaker. Having had a wide experience in many branches of education, her remarks carried conviction and many obscure points made clear.

The speaker offered no formal lecture, but in an easy manner discussed the educational problem from three angles, viz the superintendent, the teacher and the parent.

The first two divisions were touched upon lightly, but the "straight from the shoulder punch," as Miss Hale expressed it, came swift and sure while offering solid advice to the parent.

In speaking of the parent's duty to the superintendent, she left no uncertain impression as to a voter's position when a poor one has been drawn. This is her advice: "When there is fault to find and nothing to be done with the school system go to headquarters. There is the town meeting where all complaints can be heard and adjusted. If the superintendent is really not competent to hold down the job, and the committee persist in his continuance, elect a new school board, who will do with the school system as they see fit."

Silence at a time and place where discussion is invited, of course means consent. So if you as a voter have a grievance, but not a backbone, please remain silent after the opportunity for action has passed. When you do secure a progressive man with each child's welfare in view—a scholar giving his wide experience to the public, help him!

Probably the hardest "punches" were given when the speaker outlined the duties of the parent to the teacher. She said in part, "When a new instructor enters your school system, get acquainted. Make the stranger feel easy and at home. Remember they have left friends and associates for this new field, so may not be far from the homestead stage. See that they are comfortably settled with cheerful surroundings, for these things add to the teachers' efficiency. When the teacher appears in public, remember she is not a window model and overzealous, or unduly critical on her general make-up. She is but human and sensitive so a little charity on the parents' part would smooth up the rough path."

When the school is fairly in motion the parents duty is outlined by Miss Hale in this way. "Let the teacher run her own school. If there is any neighborhood disputes or petty trouble with your child and her work, please do not invite her to tea, then unload every disagreeable thing in your mind. The teacher is your guest so courtesy seals her lips. Rather make it a business proposition go to her office (the schoolroom) and there talk face to face, where both are on common ground. If you as a parent disapprove of her methods, keep the fact from your talkative friends. The excellent work of many a conscientious teacher has been nullified and her future efficiency impaired by this conversational indiscretion. The child that tells tales out of school is not always infallible, therefore suspend judgement until the other side can be heard. A teacher can make little headway in a school where the pupils are disrespectful. It is therefore the duty of every father and mother to start their children right at home, then keep them straight. Probably the easy way would be through example and not wholly by precept."

In closing, the speaker added a short talk to the teachers, what she should expect from the parent. "Demand that self-reliance be instilled into the child from the start. This home help would pave the way for more rapid advancement and a better foundation upon which to build character when away from home influence."

Refreshments were served after the lecture and a social hour followed. The next meeting will be held the last of November.

AUTO PLATES FOR 1917
The Maine department of State has decided on the style of automobile registration plates for the season of 1917.

The contract has been made and the plates will be delivered at the State House some time in December—the date being made early because the experience of past years has shown that automobile owners do not wait for "good going" but want their plates just as soon as they can be secured.

The 1917 plate for Maine will consist of a 20 gauge steel plate, with white enameled background with dark blue numerals and letters. The plate will be 5 1/4 inches wide, the length depending on the numerals. Maine 1917 will be one inch high.

The registration numerals will be four inches high and one-half inch in width.

A half-inch space will come between the numerals and the first numerals will be a half inch from the left end of the plate. The letter "B" in Maine and the figure "7" in 1917 will be a half inch from the right end of the plate, the number of the figure thus determining the length of the plate.

All numerals having four or more figures will be hyphenated, as 1-000 or 12-345. The hyphen will be one-half inch wide and three-quarters of an inch long. This will make the quick determining of a plate number a much easier matter—in fact, it will make the number reading much easier under all conditions.

"BY THE LIGHT OF THE HARVEST MOON."

The harvest moon rose behind the hill
Casting reflections in the lake
And throwing a gold light o'er the earth
That the fall moon only can make.
On the doorstep of their humble home
Sat Cy and Mary together
Facing the moonlight, hand clasping hand
As they gazed at the changing weather.
Down through the furrows of time went cheeks
Tears slowly trickled from their eyes,
Showing an emotion deeply stirred
As they watched the moon slowly rise.
Before them the moon bridge was stretching
Leading to the lake's other shore,
While the ghost trees, the tall white birches,
Were water mirrored as of yore.

Deep in their souls the physician's words
Were ever mocking and calling:
"Mary will go over the silent hill."
When the autumn leaves are falling.
For several days downward, downward,
Had come drifting from the colored leaves
And this very night they sifted down
With every whispering night breeze.

Slowly and softly Mary's voice said:
"I never again will see the light."
The golden harvest moon rising high,
And enfolding my white birth tree.
"O'er the hill the moon rose high,
Slowly weaving, steadily weaving,
Its golden threads into the sky."
"But never again will I see the light."
For I feel this is my last night.
See! my birth tree where I wish to rest
Seems to attract the golden light!

Sadly through the night air rang the words
"Never again—never again."
Oh, what words can ever be said,
When life's dear hopes are on the wane!
Far over the lake the owl hooted,
Disually hooted at the gold moon,
While the crispness of the fall air showed
That the last leaves would all drop soon.

Late they retired from the cool air
The room o'er looking the lake,
While through the night the moon, near the trees,
Small patches of gold seemed to make.

Lower, lower in the waiting was the moon
The moon was ever sinking down,
Until at last it seemed to struggle,
The fullest birch with its crown.
Weakly through the silence Mary spoke:
"See! the golden light on my tree,
Oh, our gold moon still shines," then lower,
"Goodbye Cy, say goodbye to me."

A shiver, then the crickets' loud chirp
Was stilled, and silence seemed to reign,
While echoing through the air
Came those sad words—never again.

Three days had flown on sorrowful wings,
Three long days of pain and of strife,
And sadness had entered in a soul
Changing both its path and its life.
Again the harvest moon was rising
Over the lake, and the gold moon
And still the moonlight was hooding,
And calling from a nearer perch.

When slowly, slowly, from the still house
Came the moonlight on my tree,
Oh, our gold moon still shines," then lower,
"Goodbye Cy, say goodbye to me."
A shiver, then the crickets' loud chirp
Was stilled, and silence seemed to reign,
While echoing through the air
Came those sad words—never again.
